

Anna Webb

Anna's value proposition is to work with people to improve the resilience, wellbeing, and performance of leaders and their people.

Coaching philosophy and approach

Executive coaching enables positive and pragmatic change as well as building on stability and strength. Drawing on the synergies of positive psychology, neuroscience and emotional intelligence Anna supports individuals to develop curiosity, compassion and humility, the critical leadership skills to build connections with teams, colleagues and communities. Deep insights and an understanding of human motivation ensures a pragmatic approach to coaching. Anna balances a warm engaging style with holding people accountable. Anna's passionate about helping leaders tap into their potential and to enable them to build their leadership capabilities to consciously connect with others.

Facilitation and Highly effective teams

When people have purpose, feel engaged and empowered, they produce their best work. Anna believes the only sustainable business advantage is through people and leadership. With 25 years' experience in leadership, facilitation and coaching, Anna's strength is working with people, enabling them to increase self-awareness, effect desired change and by working in partnership enable individuals and teams to flourish.

Research shows that even with all of the technology we now have available, our connection deficits are increasing rather than decreasing. Research shows that exclusion (the opposite of belonging and connection) is a growing issue. The organisations voted an 'employer of choice' value and foster connection and team work. Anna works with individuals to help them develop their abilities to be consciously connected.

Industry knowledge and experience

Anna has coached several of the top 20 ASX listed companies and has an ability to connect with people, focusing on achieving results.
